

PORCH ADDITION

Irondequoit, New York

BEFORE

PROGRAM: Front porch addition to an existing cape cod style single family residence.

COST: Withheld

Gardening and spending a lot of time outdoors are part of the client's lifestyle that drove the design of this addition. She requested a front porch be designed for their existing residence, but wanted to be sure that it would be in keeping with the original house design. The solution drew from the existing cut gable roof lines to be it into the existing structure. Tongue and groove decking and a porch bead ceiling were selected materials as they are materials that were used during the period the house was constructed. Outdoor ceiling fans were added to cool those sitting on a hot summer day.
